

Welcome!

Hi there! We are FatalisticFable, a collective of authors who've been writing together for fifteen-odd years. We've pulled from our various life experiences to create the stories you'll find here. It's so good to meet you!

After much deliberation, we've decided to share our work with the world. We recommend that you start in the shelves, where you can find the two fictional universes we've written about. There are several series (books) under each of these universes. Pick one and enjoy!

While almost all of the titles you'll find here are already finished, it may take us some time to upload each chapter to the website. Please be patient with us, as we all have busy lives outside of this project.

Thanks for taking a look! We hope you enjoy your time with us and our many stories.

This is a representation of how one of us thinks of himself. The fire doesn't actually burn anything, but he keeps it around himself to make sure untrustworthy people don't touch him.
